Levy to Netanyahu: Either Sharon is in or I quit cabinet

SARAH HONIG and LIAT COLLINS

PRIME Minister Binyamin Netanyahu met coalition representatives at midnight last night in an effort to find a speedy solution to the ongoing problem of Ariel Sharon's cabinet portfolio. The expectation in Likud circles was that a solution would be produced within hours.

This followed a public ultimatum by Foreign Minister David Levy at a coalition parties' gathering in the Knesset yesterday morning. He threatened to quit if Sharon is not in the cabinet by Monday, when Netanyahu is due to fly to Washington to meet with US President Bill Clinton.

Levy's action appeared to force Netanyahu to conclude the Sbaron affair without further delay, but those close to Netanyahu assert that the moves to establish the national infrastructure portfolio for Sharon were about to be successfully wrapped up anyway. Levy, they said, knew this and decided to hitch a ride on the nearly done deal with a little grandstanding. That be chose to issue his ultimatum at a meeting open to the press is proof of this, according to Netanyahu's aides. They also charge that Levy is emotionally unable to let Netanyahu fly off to the US and make beadlines, without first seeking some headlines

for himself. But Levy's people claim that, after two weeks of virtually no progress in getting Sharon into the cabinet, it had become increasingly evident that Netanyahu was in no burry and that many in the Likud would prefer to see Sharon left out. Given this, Levy had no choice but to continue pressing the move he bad started when the government was sworn in. Minutes before Netanyahu presented his government to the Knesset, Levy had announced he would not join the cabinet if Sharon was left out. He only relented after the intention to set up the infrastructure ministry was announced, something for which Levy's cronies were quick to claim credit.

Yesterday, Levy again embarrassed Netanyahu in public. After he launched into a lengthy lecture on foreign relations. Levy dropped his bombshell: "If by the time you leave, this issue will not be resolved," be said to Netanyahu, "and if colleagues in the cabinet continue to create difficulties ... then I will make make things easier by vacating another portfolio and another chair at the cabinet table. "This is not a threat or a trick." Levy added. "The situation cannot remain as it is."

"The job of building the government is not complete," Levy said. "We are part of the problem by not doing our bit to finding the obvious solution," alluding to the refusal by various ministers to give up part of their jurisdiction to create a national infrastructure ministry for Sharon.

Netanyahu rebuked Levy, saying that "delicate negotiations, Mr. Foreign Minister, ought not be conducted before the TV cameras. This is counterproductive. We will first consult among ourselves.

Netanyahu reaffirmed his desire to see Sharon in the cabinet, "not for his sake, but for the nation's. He has much to contribute and I hope he will."

He then complained about ministers who declare that Sharon must be included in the cabinet, but who refuse to yield anything from their portfolios. "I keep hearing: 'We'll cooperate,' so cooperate," Netanyahu said. "You can put it all on me, and I'll throw it right back at you." Sharon sat through the meeting expressionless.

What followed was an unscheduled bectic spate of political activity.

Netanyahu met with Levy over lunch in what was described as "a friendly and productive meeting. He then met with Education Minister Zevulun Hammer, of the National Rebgious Party, whose other minister, Transport and Energy Minister Yitzhak Levy, must make

This is a distinction that we believe is worth maintaining, and I think the prime minister does too, as he said he is interested in negotiating with Syria. "If you treat Syria as a rogue state, we run the risk of polarizing the region and creating a new axis of the rogue states across the region. Unless Syria decides that it wants to go that way, I cannot believe it is in the US interest to encourage it. As long as Syria is prepared to negotiate peace based on [UN Security Council the strident language of the state-owned Syrian resolutions] 242 and 338, it is important, not media, which since Netanyahu's election bas cynically playing a double game by negotiating with Israel, but also supporting terror groups, Indyk noted that Syria remains on the State Department list of countries supporting terror and this hurts the US-Syrian relationship. But, he said, "It is worthwhile to resolve this problem through talking to them; engaging them, and explaining to them why it does not serve their interests, as well as not serving the interests of peace or achieving a peace agreement." He cannoned against reading too much into

This is the basis of resolutions 242 and 338 and Madrid, where the previous Likud government began the peace DTOCCSS.

"It is still our principle. We also have another principle that is accepted by all the parties, that the issues have to be resolved in direct negotiations between them."

PRIME Minister Binyamin Netanyahu is likely to inform President Bill Clinton during their Tuesday meeting in the White House that he is willing to redeploy the IDF in Hebron and meet with Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat, Foreign Ministry officials believe. The officials believe that message will be conveyed to Clinton during the one-on-one part of the meeting, not during the part with aides on both sides present.

While saying no meeting between Netanyahu and Arafat has been set, the officials are dubious that the meeting will be linked to a variety of conditions on the Palestinian side:

The Palestinian issue is expected to dominate the Clinton-Netanyahu talks. So far, Netanyahu has refused to say whether he will convey any message on Hebron and an Arafat meeting to Clinton.

In reaction, an official in the Prime Minister's Office said there would likely be a "modified redeployment" in Hebron which would be linked to the type of arms carried by Palestinian policemen and which "would take some time" to implement.

LABOR MK Ra'anan Cohen's accusations of election fraud are almost entirely baseless, as elemen-tary checking on his part would have shown, Central Elections Committee director-general Ta-mar Edni said in an affidavit to the Jernsalem District Court yesterday. Edri was responding to Cohen's appeal against the outcome of the prime ministerial race, which the district court is to hear today. Because of the importance of the issue, Edri wrote, she and Ehud Shiloh, the Interior Ministry's national supervisor of eleotions, investigated all of Cohen's charges personally. Following are their findings: . Cohen claimed that in 42 stations, the number of ballots exceeded the number of people crossed off the voting lists. Edn checked 32 cases in which the alleged gap was more than five votes. In eight cases, she found no gap at all, while in most of the remainder, the gap was only one or two votes. In a few other cases, the gap was three or four. In one case, a gap of seven was found, but the station's protocol poted that due to an enormous press of voters at one juncture, it was possible that several had not been crossed off. Finally, in one case a gap of eight votes was found. "There were gross errors in [Co-hen's] count of the number of names crossed off," Edri wrote. "In some cases, there was a gap of tens [of names] between the number actually crossed off and the number [Cohen] claimed had been crossed off."

In one Bnei Brak station, for instance, Cohen said there were 484 ballots, but only 429 voters (Continued on Page 2)

"It is unequivocally clear to me now that all wage carners will be dealt a severe blow, especially the lower-income ones. and there is no reason to hide it. We must not delude the public," he said.

Peretz suggested to Meridor that he modify the cutbacks in social and welfare services and distribute them over several years, rather than a drastic onetime cut, even if it means increasing the deficit by 0.5%.

Meridor replied that "the Histadrut chairman said what his duty compels bim to. The program is not intended to burt the weaker classes, and the cutbacks will be distributed in a way to minimize the barm to lower-income earners. But there should be po illusions. We have to cut government's expenses in security, welfare, and everything else, and we will do it now, so that the economy can continue growing as it did in the past."

NEWS Kahalani: Palestinian officials violating rules on Orient House

PALESTINIAN officials at Orient House, the PLO beadquarters in Jerusalem, are violating the ban on Palestinian Authority activity in the city, and action must be taken by the government to halt them, Internal Security Minister Avigdor Kahalani said yesterday. Kahalani, speaking to The Jerusalem Post after a marathon meeong with security officials on Orient House, also revealed that Faisal Husseini, whoruns Orient House and is apparently concerned about its future, has asked for a meeting with him.

"I have not yet decided whether we will meet, I first want to speak about the matter with the prime minister," Kahalani said. He said an aide to Husseini made the contact with his office yesterday.

Kahalani declined to go into details about what type of action he was recommending against Orient House, on grounds it would be wrong for it to be made public before being presented to the prime minister. He confirmed, however, that the meeting changed bis previous view that no immediate action was needed.

Kahalani is scheduled to present bis recommendations to

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu tomorrow. Kahalani heads the committee of security officials the government asked to make recommendations on Orient House, which met for the first time yesterday.

"We reviewed all the different operations that take place there, and all I can say at this stage is that there are viola-dons [ot the ban on PA acovity in Jerusalem] at Orient House, which demand our action," Kahalani said. At the Knesset, Kahalani said the government is deter-mined to enforce those clauses of the Oslo Accords which forbid the PA to operate in Orient House.

There will be no Palestinian Authority activities at [Orient] House," he said, anawering motions to the agenda from Avi Yebezkel (Lahor) and Moshe Peled (Tsomet). He added that the PA is trying to create facts on the ground hy operating in Jerusalem despite the agreements.

Kahalani noted that Orient House has been turned into a symbol, "and a place of pilgrimage for people who come from abroad and want to show their identification with the Palestinians."

He called on the Palestinians "not to challenge us, and not to introduce unnecessary tension," and warned that the govemment would be forced to close the building if PA acovities continue there.

The government committee on the subject met last night, and is scheduled to present is recommendations to the cabinct tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister David Levy told the Knesset the government would abide by internacional agreements. He was answering a motion by MK Haim Ramon (Labor).

"We've said it before and I'll say it again, and stress that the government will abide hy international agreements. Naturally, not every statement by every person - things that aren't signed documents... - obligate us. "We also have a fundamental right to examine how the other side ahides by its side of the agreement," Levy added.

Gaps of a few votes, Edri said, can mean policemen voted at that station. By law, police officers do not have to vote at their own polling station, since their duties may make this impossible. what he would like.

One compromise would be naming two directors-general, with Eitan Bentsur, Levy's top diplomatic adviser during his 1990-1992 tenure, as policical director-general.

Bentsur is now acting directorgeneral. Under this scenario, Bardugo would be administrative director-general.

The Likud, which also submitted an affidavit, added that it had tried to locate all 432 of the alleged problem cases. The party succeeded in speaking to 231 of them, and all 231 said they had been in Israel on election day. The upshot of all this, Edri said, is that the data on voters who were allegedly not present cast no doubt on the election results. However, she continued, because even one case of fraud would be a serious matter, the CEC has asked the police to investigate. In one Herzliya station, votes for Shimon Peres were credited to Binyamin Netanyahu, and vice versa, with the result that Netanyahu got 160 votes that did not belong to him. This appears to have been a genuine mistake, Edri said, noting that since Labor's representative chaired the halloting committee at that station, it is hard to imagine the error was deliberate,

"The problems which [Cohen] referred to do not indicate the existence of 'widespread irregulatity and fraud'," Edri concluded. The Liknd, meanwhile, at-

Course trains women from CIS to help absorb new immigrants

TWELVE women from the CIS have just completed training to help their newly arrived sisters. Emma Sotnikova was one of the graduates.

"Women in the CIS are stronger than men," said Somikova, 49. But once here, they have to overcome more hurdles. One of these is stereotypes: If they're under 40, they're seen as prostitutes," she said. "If they're over 40, they're seen as too old to work." They also come here expecting to find the equality in the workplace they knew in the CIS, a socializing agent.

Sotnikova said. For the participants, the two-month program sponsored by the Zionist Forum and the Israel Women's Network was a crash course in Western gender relations. It also included topics like women's health and psychology, social and legal benefits, self-image, assertiveness, women's image in the media, and the family as a journalist and art crioc in Leningrad. She is now the editor of the women's section of the Russian-language daily Vesn. Though she has been here longer than the other participants, the course was an eye-opener for her, and she said she can now be a better resource for other womeo immigrants.

Young ambulance volunteers serve well

TEN Hebrew-speaking young Jews from Canada who completed a 50-hour resuscitation and first-aid course abroad are spendiog the summer as volunteers on Magen David Adom ambulances in Jerusalem. The young meo and women are working alongside Israeli volunteers.

The unusual project was initiated five years ago, when a young Canadian came to spend time with relacives in Jerusalem and asked to volunteer at the capital's MDA station. He did so well that station director Avraham Halbersberg asked the Jewish Agency to locate similar volunteers from the Jewish community in Canada. A group of young peo-ple has come every summer since then, hosted by the agency and integrated into MDA's ambulance teams for two months each.

The Jewish Agency found that within a year, most of the volunteers decide to settle in Israel, and many serve in the Israel Defense Forces. Two MDA staffers have married former Canadian volunteers. Judy Siegel

In the decision, a response to Deri's request for a summer recess should the "no case" argument be rejected, the judges wrote that they had considered refusing the request because "the road to the end of the trial is still long." Deri's attorney, Dan Avi-Yitzhak, charged that this wording proved that the judges had decided to reject the "no case" argument before they had heard it, which in turn proved they were hopelessly biased against his client. He supported this allegauon by citing numerous other procedural decisions and statements by the court, which, he said, taken together, demonstrated bias.

War crimes trial hears about butchery of Srebrenica refugees

THE HAGUE. Netherlands (AP) – Terrified Srebrenica refugees were reassured by Bosnian Serb Gen. Ratko Mladic, then butchered by his troops until the nearby river ran red with blood, a war crimes investigator testified yesterday. Jean-Rene Ruez, a French policeman who interviewed witnesses, gave a numbing litany of atrocities Bosnian Serb forces allegedly committed against Moslem refugees following the fall of the UN safe haven in July 1995. His testimony at a hearing of the Yugoslav war crimes tribunal is linked to the UN court's indictment of Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and Mladic for genocide at Srebrenica.

Karadzic and Mladic have rejected the court's jurisdiction and refused to come to the Hague for trial.

Prospects of arresting its two prime suspects seem dim, so the tribunal is using the hearing to spotlight evidence against them in hopes that will mobilize a reluctant international community to take them into custody.

Since the seven-day hearing is not a trial in absentia, no verdict will be reached, although the proceedings could produce an international arrest warrant.

Ruez told the judges that after Bosnian Serb soldiers entered the enclave on July 11, 1995, several thousand men, women and children fled to a compound manned by Dutch soldiers of the UN Protection Force in nearby Potocari. Meanwhile, about 15,000 Moslem soldiers and civilians were forced to march in a huge column through mine-infested woods toward Bosnian government territory in Tuzla.

Ruez described how about 3,000 men were separated from the women in Potocari. Torture, mutilation and slaughter followed.

A group of 16 men were lined up along the river and once they lined up, soldiers opened fire." said Ruez.

Witnesses who later went to the area "saw the bodies close to the river, which was filled with blood," he said.

NEWS

Ruez cited an incident where a soldier forced a man 10 cut open his grandson's stomach and eat part of his liver.

"He took the old man and put a knife in his hand ... and cut open the stomach of the little boy and then with the np of his knife took out an organ from the inside of the child's stomach and he forced the man to eat that part," Ruez told the court.

"One eyewitness said a man's nose, ears and lips were cut off before he had his throat slit." Suicides were common. "Their bodies were found hanging," said Ruez.

"The marble goes on down this garden hose and every so often it sticks and blocks the flow," he said. "That's where the problem occurs and it just continues on down the transmission system. It could have occurred anywhere but we do know that it did not happen in our system."

Utility officials said the problem appears to have begun in Oregon, just north of the California border, on the so-called "intertie," a power transmission network that links much of the western United States in a grid.

Burundi denies massacre charges BUJUMBURA, Burundi (Reuter) - Burundi's defense minister denied yesterday Hutu rebel charges that Burundian troops, with the help of Rwandan soldiers, had massacred 1,000 Hutu civilians in northwest Cibitoke province. Minister Firmin Sinzoyiheba, a moderate Tutsi member of the divided government, said a major offensive was underway in the region to flush out Hutu rebels but he denied that troops from neighboring Rwanda were fighting alongside his forces.

Sinzoyiheba said troops had killed more than 30 rebels in Cibitoke on June 27 after they ambushed an military-escorted convoy, killing an army officer, a soldier and one civilian.

But he said there was not a single civilian casualty caused hy Burundian soldiers despite the army starting an operation to flush out the Hum rebels.

Work resumes near Auschwitz

WARSAW (AP) - Defying a ban by local authorities, developers resumed work yesterday on a controversial project near Auschwitz. The decision followed a "lack of any positive response by authorities" to efforts to reach a compromise, developer Janusz Marszalek said. Last month, Marszalek, who originally intended to build a shopping mall across the former Nazi Auschwitz death camp, abandoned the plan and said he instead would build a visitors' center with a fast-food outlet, parking lot and a book shop. But his plan wasn't yet approved, and local anthorities have informed him that resuming work is illegal:

Investigators seek clues

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) -Investigators were loaking for tormer detainees and courts' acquittals of 20 Islamic militants on the basis they had confessed under duress.

"Despite the government's pledges to abide by international human rights treaties which forbid torture... torture of political detainees continue to be systematic," said the Amnesty report.

Thousands of sympathizers and people suspected of belonging to outlawed fundamentalist groups were detained during investigations for as long as six years, the report said.

This echoed findings of Egyptian human rights advocates.

PHNOM PENH. Cambodia (AP) - Despite deployment of military police to prevent widespread cheating, chaos reigned during annual examinations yesterday as hundreds of children scaled school walls 10 pass crib notes 10 exam takers.

Others, in full view of police, used bullhoms to yell answers to students inside. One boy at Chak Tomok school in Phnom Penh had his head bloodied when someone threw a rock through an open classroom window. Attached was a crib sheet.

They think they are helping the students. but they are weakening Cambodia, which desperately needs capable people to help reconstruct the country," sighed Chey Srim, deputy director in charge of exams in Chak Tomok. Cambodia's education system has been a shambles since the Khmer Rouge massacred the country's best brains two decades ago. The civil war that followed drained resources from reviving the system, and even after UN-sponsored elections in 1993, teaching standards remain poor and jobs scarce for graduates.

Three days of exams ended yesterday for an estimated 10.000 students in Phnom Penh seeking to advance to the upper level of high school, crucial for ever attaining a scarce uni-versity slot. More than 100 civilian and military police ringed every school, blocking roads and surrounding buildings. to try to prevent chearing.

Still, mass cheating ensued. Education Ministry officials met in the afternoon to consider throwing out all the results, but decided that would be 100 disruptive to the system.

"It is as though we are living in an anarchic country where law was never respected at all," said Pol Phithey, police chief of Daun Penh district, who oversaw three schouls.

Cambodians believe that finishing high school and university are the only ways to ensure success in society, but that belief is often an illusion. Jobs often are obtained by cheating, in the form of bribery.

Despite - or because of - efforts by the govemment to crack down on cheating, the situanon is worse than ever.

WARSAW (Reuter) - Vandals have destroyed more than 60 graves at Warsaw's Jewish cemetery, police said this week.

"The extent of the damage varies, with some tombstones huned upside down and others smashed," Warsaw police spokesman Tomasz Grzelewski told Renters, adding that the damage had been done to recent headstones while historic ones were unharmed.

He said the incident probably happened on Friday night and police had launched an investigation.

Menachem Joskowitz, chief rabbi of the few thousand Jews living in Poland, urged the authorities to take strict measures to prevent such incidents in future, because they perpetuated a stereotype of Poles as antisemites.

"All over the world there is talk of Polish antisemitism. People here must be on guard so that such things are not said." Joskowitz told private Radio Zet.

But the head of local police in western Warsaw told PAP news agency the vandalism was probably the work of teenagers practicing karate rather than an anti-Jewisb act.

Queen to keep Buckingham Palace open LONDON (Reuter) - Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth's London home, is to remain open to visitors for several weeks every summer once fire damage to Windsor Castle has been repaired, the government announced yesterday. The queen opened the palace doors to paying visitors in 1994 to belp finance the restoration of Windsor Castle, west of London, which was badly damaged by fire in November 1992. More than 400,000 people visited Buckingham Palace during the eight weeks it was open last year, raising a net £2.98 million ($4.6 million) for restoration work at Windsor, which is expected to cost a total of £35.5 million ($55.3 million).

Still no answers after Hemingway autopsy

SANTA MONICA, California (AP) - An autopsy performed on Margaux Hemingway's body failed to answer lingering questions about why the model-turned-actress died alone in her beachside apartment. "The examination was unremarkable and did not reveal any indication of trauma or foul play," the coroner's office said in a statement Tuesday.

Toxicological tests were ordered and it will be at least two weeks before they are completed, the coroner's office said. Sgt. Gary Gallinot said no suicide note was found, "but we're not ruling it out." Hemingway, 41, was last seen Saturday and her decomposed body was found Monday night. #### Gift-A Biography of Vladimir (Ze'ev) Jabotinsky LONE WOLF Singular masterpiece decorated with paintings by the by Shmuel Katz renowned Jewish-Israeli artist Dan Ophir. Eighty-five full This is the long-awaited English version of the biography of one of the most dramatic figures of 20th century jewish history - Ze'ev Jabotinsky, founder of Revisionism - journalist, novelist, poet, soldier, linguist and outstanding orator. Shmuel Katz has drawn on archival material, unpublished and newly translated letters, and extensive sources for this account of the center of Zionist history in the 1920's and beyond. Katz color plates inspired by biblical passages - from Genesis to Chronicles. Lyrical, highly-emotional visual responses to the text are given on facing pages in this exceptional album. Superb gift album, timely tribute to Jerusalem, the sacred city, on its 3000th anniversary. himself is known as an author and newspaper columnist; he has used newly available archival documentation in this meticulous and JP Special Price NIS 279 incl. door-to-door delivery (where comprehensive biography, from Odessa, 1880 to New York, 1940, Previously published in Hebrew as JABO. ### BAZAAR

THE expression "laws were made to be broken" seems to apply all too often where consumerism is concerned. With regard to the enticement of minors, it seems to be an outright motto.

In 1991, amendments to the Consumer Protection Act geared toward protecting our children from dubious marketing gimmicks were legislated. Initiated by The National Council for the Child, and pushed painstakingly through Knesset committees with the aid of former MK. Sheehane Acheli Alexandra there amendments were created in aid of former MK Shoshana Arbeli-Almozlino, these amendments were created in response to a growing phenomenon of "pediatric" exploitation on the part of the adver-tising community. Not only were children being used to sell products, but they were becoming targets of ad campaigns aimed at their parents.

All too aware that children provide the perfect nudnik factor in relation to parental purse strings, advertisers set out to tap a valuable "virginal" resource. I'll never forget the day when two of my sons came home from school, short of breath, to beg for a subscription to the children's magazine Pashosh. A salesman had made the rounds in all of the classrooms that day, producing shiny metal medallions on a ribbon "which could be yours upon purchasing an annual subscription" to the illustrious journal. Proud to have such intellectually curious offspring, I fooled myself into believing that they actually intended to read the thing - and that the medallion had nothing whatsoever to do with their fervor.

My dreams were instantly shattered, however, when it became clear that a single subscription would not suffice. "But which of us will get to keep the medallion?" they both wailed. Nothing I did or said during the remainder of the week provided consolation, as each day another of their friends appeared in class decorated with the coveted piece of junk on a string.

Now, five years after the legislation forbidding such solicitation was enacted, the utilization of children's innocence about and excitement over terms like "free gift" and "prize" has grown in leaps and bounds. Not a bag of potato chips, nor a bottle of Coca-

Cola, nor even a tank of gas can be had without an accompanying promise of Disneyworld, cash bonuses, or decals.

THE "NUDNIK" factor makes it impossible to go anywhere with kids - particularly the supermarket - without being bombarded with requests for expensive purchases. based on ever-renewed fantasies of buried treasures. Portions of the "advertising aimed at minors" regulations are worth quoting here, to illustrate the audacious manner in which "respectable" marketers continue to violate the law;

"[Advertising aimed at minors may not] contain... the encouragement of minors to persuade their parents or to plead with them or with any other person to purchase for them goods or a service ... [nor shall it cause] minors to feel deprived, inferior, or unpopular in relation to other minors if they do not purchase an item of merchandise or if they do not bring about its purchase for them .... [Advertising aimed at encouraging minors to] participate in gambling, games of chance or lotteries [is forbidden], with the exception of [those] not intended for commercial purposes."

National Council for the Child director Yitzhak Kadman "has no problem" with ads for children's products, as long as no "preconditions" are attached to their purchase. But he does strongly oppose ads for adult merchandise which offer children bonuses,

Kadman is disappointed with the Ministry of Industry and Trade for not enforcing legislation crucial to protecting our youth. "Even when very detailed complaints about specific violations have been lodged with the ministry, nothing has been done." he claims. He suggests that parents would do well to begin educating their children in responsible consumerism - including how not to be fooled by micleading ad campaigns - from a young age.

Trade Ministry spokesman Dor Marom vehemently denies Kudman's allegations: "All complaints relating to the law preventing exploitation of minors through advertising - whether through the print or electronic media - are dealt with individually. This issue receives attention, follow-up and supervision, as does every issue under Trade Ministry care.

"We suggest that anyone who witnesses such exploitation file a complaint, and we will be glad to deal with every incidence, as we have done in the past, and will continue to do in the future.

"Furthermore, special anention to this issue has been given, via a new follow-up center (monitoring the cable network's shopping channel) headed by Zamir Chayet supervisor of the Consumer Protection Act's section on the exploitation of minors. Since the center began operating two months ago, about 50 complaints have been received. each of which is in a different stage of treatment, and most of which have been completed to the satisfaction of the consumers."

To complain about violations, phone: (03) 560-4611, or write to: Zamir Chayet, 76 Rehov Mazeh, Tel Aviv. No trips to EuroDisney guaranteed.

You are invited to offer personal stories about goods and services in this country. Write to: Ruthie Blum, POB 81, 91000 Jerusalem.

There are very few Israelis, especially in the English-speaking community, who have no relatives abroad that simply must be communicated with regularly.

But extortionate pricing makes it a financial nightmare. Now, however, there is a cheaper solution - and all you need is a computer and an Internet connection. spark FLAIR GREER FAY CASHMAN was unfortunate that the Hadassah-WIZO Canada Neri Bloomfield College of Design decided to hold a preview of the creations of its graduate class on the same day as that of the Shenkar College of Textile Technology and Fashion.

Creative

Although there was a similarity in several of the design concepts, the difference in execution was so striking as to put Hadassah-WIZO completely in the shade.

It wasn't that the Hadassah-WIZO students were devoid of ideas. A lot of imagination went into their clothes - but they lacked the sparkle and pizzazz of the infinitely superior Shenkar collection.

What emerged from both showings however, was a sense of rebellion against the pure classicism which it seems still dominates the fashion scene. Some budding designers went to the opposite extreme, producing a rag-bag of scruffy-looking, mismatched separates or outrageous-looking outfits which might best be described as technicolor grunge. Others leaned toward high drama, such as Hadassah-WIZO's Ayelet Mizrachi, whose romantic, layered organza 1950s-style evening dresses were each constructed around a swimsuit, which comprised the torso of the garment Samiramis Shahada-Raful, who designed the gown, is smitten by the romantic.

Shai Shalom was more romantically inclined, and his creations reflected sheer sophistication reminiscent of the clothes which Audrey Hepburn wore in several of her movies.

HADASSAH-WIZO's Samiramis Shahada-Raful was also smitten by the romantic muse, and her strapless gowns, with lors of drape, bouffancy and even a bustle showed promise, but needed more work to Shenkar fashion and textile designers, and it's almost unfair to exclude anyone, because they were all good. But those who were truly outstanding include Victor Balish, whose black gossamer spiderwoman designs featuring cobweb bodices were true works of art; Ayelet Weinman, whose futuristic evening gowns in glitzy, looped, spiked and shaggy fabrics were: definite attention-getters; Iris

Who's the boss?

"OREIGN Minister David Levy's threat yesterday — in the spotlight of television cameras and in the presence of an astonished Prime Minister BinyaminNetanyahu - to resign next week if Ariel Sbaron is not accomodated by then, crossed all reasonable boundaries of impudence, collegial misconduct, and political blackmail.

It's been nearly two decades since Menachem Begin made Levy a national figure by appointing him to a cabinet post, thus salvaging the former construction worker from relative obscurity as an activist in the Likud's Histadrut faction. Since then, Levy bas earned himself a reputation, unparalleled even in this exceptionally narcissistic political landscape, as a champion of apology, demands, arm twisting, and resignation threats; usually disguised in the form of ideology, but always aimed at enhancing his own personal fortunes. In 1981, for instance, unable to stomach Begin's decision to deprive him of the Ministry of Absorption in favor of the Tami faction, Levy threatened to stay outside the cabinet, and ultimately won, as a reward for "loyalty," the position of deputy prime minister as well as responsibility for Project Renewal. In August 1985, Levy threatened to organize a separate wing within his party if a decision to co-opt the small La'am faction into the Likud's Herut section was not rescinded. Yitzhak Shamir acquiesced and agreed to a revote. In November 1988, Levy quit the Likud's negotiating team and sulked in his office in protest at Sbamir's handling of the coalition negotiations with religious parties. Three years later, Levy said he was considering resigning after Shamir decided to bead the Israeli delegation to the Madrid peace conference. Ultimately, Sbamir appeased him hy agreeing that then-deputy foreign minister Binyamin Netanyabu would move from the Foreign Ministry to the Prime Minister's Office, and Levy would be fully briefed on the premier's diplomatic activity.

Finally, in March 1992, Levy announced he planned to resign as foreign minister, but made his resignation statement only several hours after the weekly cabinet meeting. This gave him

Shamir for considering to allow the Palestinians in the territories to elect their own leaders. Then, too, Levy's real goal was personal - to become foreign minister - and he achieved this. Never mind that once in office Levy tried to reappear as the dove wbo, in 1985, bad cast the deciding vote in the cabinet session which resolved to retreat from central Lebanon.

Levy's behavior yesterday, therefore, continues a very familiar pattern: The aim - to secure his stature as kingmaker and to diminish the premier'a clout - is personal. The idealistic argument - "defending a wounded friend" - is disingenuous. And the tactic, to publicly bold Israel's elected leader at gun point, is downright thuggish.

It's high time all this came to an end.

Sharon may deserve to join the cabinet, and even play a major role once inside, but the decision on that can only be made by the man the people elected as premier. Levy could bave asked the voters to prefer him for that role over Netanyahu, and indeed be appeared to contemplate that option for well over two years. At the end of the day, he chose not to challenge Netanyahu, apparently fully aware be stood no chance to win.

It follows then, that Levy's behavior is nothing more than a well calculated attempt to devalue the directly elected premier's stature, with the aim of making him as vulnerable and manipulable as those of his predecessors whom Levy has so systematically abused.

If be were to be asked about it, Levy would likely say his tragedy is that be failed to become Israel's prime minister. Yet his real tragedy is that, in 1983, when offered the position of finance minister during Israel's worst ever economic crisis, he ducked out and rejected that proposal, and thus lost a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to assume national leadership and take responsibility under tough circumstances. Indeed, Levy's could have been a more constructive career. His first resignation threat, back in June 1978, was aimed to prevent the closure of the Kitan textile plant in his hometown of Beit She'an. Though economically arguable, Levy's stance then was socially noblect and nationally legitimate. Yet that David Levy has long since given way to a politician concerned with little more than his own advancement, so much so that even as foreign minister he is prepared to risk sabotaging the prime minister's extremely delicate trip to the White House.

Savir's dark secret

Here boasted that he spent 3,000 hours negotiating to set up the Oslo accords with the PLO on behalf of the Labor government. But Foreign Ministry director-general Uri Savir had a dark secret he kept locked away.

Last Sunday, when he took leave of his colleagues at the ministry, Savir said an astonishing thing. He warned that it would be "dangerous" to allow Arafat's closest confidante and adviser, Ahmed Tibi, to take part in future peace talks with Israel.

We would like to ask Savir; If Tibi is so dangerous, why did you keep quiet during the past three years while this Arafat henchman, a fluent Hebrew speaker and an Israeli citizen, pressed the Rabin-Peres government to make everincreasing concessions to the PLO?

Why, during those 3,000 hours of getting to know the PLO's real intentions didn't you warn your fellow Jews about the danger facing them, a danger which was as clear as daylight? Isn't it bypocritical to admit a truth you have long known only when you're quitting a key job?

Tibi, more than anyone else, protected Yasser Arafat when the PLO leader aired again and again on TV and in the world press the PLO's aim of making Jerusalem the capital of an independent Palestinian state. Yet the silvertongued Tibi was given more time - to spread his anti-Zionist message - on Israeli TV and even Army Radio than all the opposition leaders put together. His theme was consistent: domination over the whole land of Israel. Savir's explanation of his sudden opposition to Tibi goes like this: It would be dangerous for Israeli Arabs like him to be in involved in the negotiations as this would blur their identity. All the more reason, surely, for Savir to have seen it as his duty to blow the whistle on Tibi and his anti-Zionist propaganda during every second of those 3,000 Sir, - Recently, I saw a documenhours. "HERE'S something so satisfying, almost heartwarming, about finding yourself at complete odds with someone politically yet at the same time respecting him in the highest, to the point where you just like the guy tremendously. This is my attitude toward Benny Begin. The science minister is the most rigid, ideological right-wing member of our rightwing government. He's a oneman rejectionist front against the government's plans to deal with Yasser Arafat. Prime Minister Netanyahu has essentially told bim that if he doesn't like those plans, he can walk. Begin may not be long for this cabinet.

Yet much as I think bis approach to the peace process would be a disaster for the country, if Begin were prime minister I wouldn't be feeling this nausea that's been nagging at me ever since the more moderate, "pragmatic" Netanyahu came to power. It's not his politics that makes Netanyahu's election impossible for me to swallow. It's not even his style or personality. It's what he did for the two years between the signing of the Oslo accords and Yitzhak Rabin's assassina-

Netanyahu led the opposition. He was the headliner at so many of those demonstrations. Sure, he went through the motions of reproaching the mobs for calling Rabin a traitor and murderer. He threw a few cups of water on the fire rising up in front of him. But he spent 99 percent of his time watching it burn.

Three weeks before the assassination, when Rabin's car was attacked in Jerusalem, when a man was arrested - though later acquitted - for trying to assault Rabin in Netanya, when the malevolence toward bim was nearing its peak, President Weizman said: This is an unprecedented phenomenon. It cannot be allowed to spread. There are forces that can stop it if they wish."

Who were those "forces" Weizman was referring to? Might . the leader of the right-wing opposition be one of them? Netanyahu could have led in stopping that unprecedented phenomenon during those terrible times; he just

Once again Levy's tactics worked, and he received a promise to be reappointed foreign minister should the Likud win the elections, which - not coincidentally - it ultimately lost.

Yet Levy's most telling tale of political abuse was his pivotal role in the 1990 unholy triple alliance with Yitzhak Moda'i and Ariel Sharon, which scolded a famously hawkish Yitzhak threat.

Against this grim backdrop, Netanyahu, even if he does want to bring Sharon into the cabinet before Levy's deadline expires, may do well by doing what Begin and Shamir were afraid to do. and let Levy make good on his resignation

NON-VIOLENT CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

Sir. - Eric Lee claims, in his article of June 18, that there is a need to declare a civil uprising against the new government just as was done by Zo Artzenu. protests, I believed him. He was alarmed and spoke with argency. I never once saw a trace of that in Netanyahu.

And, unlike Netanyahu, Begin wouldn't denounce the hate tactics as a mere preface to another broadside against Rabin, so that the call for restraint was forgotten while the attack on the government stuck.

With Begin there were no "buts," no qualifiers. He took the moral character of the opposition seriously, he didn't just pay lip service to it.

He wasn't alone, either. There were a few other politicians and activists on the right who spoke out forcefully against the rabble in their midst. Among the opposition leaders, Dan Meridor and David Levy stood out.

Regardless of bow strongly they opposed Rabin's policles, Begin and these few others were not only morally innocent of Rabin's murder, they were among the heroea of the evil period that preceded it.

With Begin, my differences are political, not moral. Begin can go on as long and as loud as he wants against Arafat and the Oalo accords and I never get the idea that the forces of darkness are gathering. He may be one of the last of the Revisionist ideologues, as right-wing as they come, but in ultimate matters of good vs. bad. I sense that we're on the same side..

When Begin is holding forth, I forget that Israel is so dangerously divided. The sense of schism dissipates. It seems as if we're just engaged in a disagreement, vigorous but clean, between people of good will. We can talk about it and still go home as friends.

How many Israeli politicians embody that? Not many. For sure not the prime minister.

If Begin leaves the government, Netanyahu probably won't even know enough to miss him.

ODAY marks the 50th anniversary of the infamous pogrom in the Polish city of Kielce. The pogrom, in which thousands of ordinary people took to the streets and massacred their neighbors on the charge that the latter were guilty of ritual murder, was a result of a blood-libel accusation against the Jews. The pogrom's anniversary is by and large ignored in Poland.

Ritual murder charges against Jews are a frequent occurrence in Polish history. The first anti-Jewish pogrom caused by ritual murder accusations after Poland's liberation from the Nazis occurred in August 1945.

Leaflets on the streets of Cracow proclaimed: The Jews are our eternal enemies. They kill our children in their synagogues." Responding to such propaganda, a Polish mob attacked the synagogue on Miodowa Street during the Shabbat service. The synagogue was set on fire and the Torah scrolls desecrated. The riots spread to Sosnowiec and Lublin. The number of victims is not known as the riots were never officially reported. But the Kielce pogrom was the worst consequence of bloodlibel charges. A nine-year-old Christian boy, Henryk Biaszczyk, the son of a local laborer, disappeared from home. For two days he stayed with relatives in a nearby village, but when the boy came back and was asked where he had been, he said that he was kidnapped by Jews. and kept in a cellar where he saw 15 other Christian children already murdered. It was, he said, at the house on 7 Planty Street

Among the occupants of this house was the Kielce Jewish Committee, a group of young Jews who were getting ready to leave Poland for Palestine, survivors of the Nazi camps and some returnees from the Soviet Union

As soon as the story became known among the local population, crowds began to gather around the building. Before the police had time to consider what action to take, the crowd had grown to several thousand. In a wild fury some broke into the building and any Jew they were able to drag outside was beaten or trampled to death. Some of the victims were thrown out of the windows.

A unit of the internal security forces sent to the scene of the pogrom joined the killers. The attackers received further assistance from a group of miners.

The carnage was only stopped late in the afternoon when a large army unit arrived from Warsaw. But even when the wounded were being taken to hospital, the open wagons in which they were transported became the target for stone-throwers.' According to some estimates, half the Kielce population of 50,000 took part in this, a pogrom reminiscent of the Dark Ages.

While the carnage was taking place on Planty Street, other parts of the town and its surroundings were the scene of more murders. Jewish passengers on trains arriving at Kielce were murdered. Altogether the pogrom resulted in 42 deaths and more than 80 injured.

REPRESENTATIVES of the gov-erumeot, the Central Jewish Committee, and the foreign press were preseot at the funerals. While the caskets with the bodies of the victims were lowered into the ground, a Polish professor named Gorecki expressed his sorrefrained from commenting. A letter read in churches after the pogrom failed to condemn the violence, but rather obscured the issue of Polish antisemitism. The archbishop of Kielce refused to condemn the pogrom. And the archhishop of Lublin, who later became a cardinal, had this to say on blood libels: "During the trial of Beilis [in Tsarist Russia] many Jewish scriptures were submitted to deny the practice of using Christian blood for ritual purposes, but there was no proof that it wasn't practiced."

An exception was the archbishop of Chestochowa, who had the courage to condemin not only the violence but the accusations of ritual munder.

It was only in 1981 that an article in Tygodnik Solidarnosci by Prof. Krystyna Kersten broke the silence on the Kielce pogrom. Further investigation to find out who was behind the pogroni was undertaken by Jerzy Slawomir in 1986,

In 1990, Gazeto Wyborcza - a leading Warsaw daily - published an extensive analysis of the events in Kielce entitled "Kill a Jew." Since then, the anniversary of the Kielce pogrom has received only a passing mention in the Polish press.

WHAT IS significant about all the published material in Poland regarding the pogrom is the variety of theories on the identity of the instigators. Among the suspects are the Communists, the Polish underground, the Polish government in exile, the Zionists and finally the Jews themselves,

The former head of the province of Wislicz said in 1986: "Today J would like to forget about [the pogrom], but if you insist on going hack 40 years... I can consider that the Jews themselves are partly responsible."

Not one Polish historian has investigated the antisemitism that caused the pogrom. Until recently. any public admission of Polanti's guilt was met by a hostile reaction from those Poles who considered such admissions as denigrating the honor of the Polish nation.

In 1990, on the 44th anniversary of the pogrom, a commemorative pluque for the victims of the pogroin was unveiled on the initiative of then president Lech Walesa. On the day prior to the unveiling, the victims' graves in the Kielce cemetery were desecrated, and during the night the plaque was defaced.

There were also numerous, albeit feeble, attempts by some Polish personalities and by members of the Catholic clergy to express regret for past behav-ior. And the Catholic Church, which historically has been responsible for so much Polish antisemitism, has been quite active in Irving 10 change the attitutes of the Polish masses toward Jews. A letter of the Polish

Episcopate, read in all Polish churches on January 21, 1981, contained expressions of regret for all acts of antisemitism which have taken place on Polish soil at any time and by anyone." The letter also begs for forgiveness for the Church's position during the Nazi occupation of Poland

French ultranationalist Le Pen – Unplugged

THE big shock in last year's first round of French presi-L dential elections wasn't the winner or even the runner-up. It was the strong support for Jean-Marie Le Pen, leader of the extreme-right National Froot. Le Pen collected 15 percent of the vote, his best showing in three tries for the presidency, on a campaign to expel France's three million immigrants. And the stocky, silver-haired politician is still basking in the glow.

That creates - and people don't understand - a very real danger of submersion. And just because this immigration is done without weapons doesn't mean it isn't an invasion. If the Nazis had come in 1939 with suitcases and hats, it still would have been an invasion. Are you saying some immi-grants are better than others? our official policy has been to refuse immigration. It is only the laxity and cowardice of governments that have let them enter and have even pumped them in.

I don't hold it against the immigrants. Someone who in Africa or in Asia earns 100 francs a month hy working, and who knows here he will earn 5,000 francs without working, comes. Obviously.

But these huge numbers create a mortal danger to our civilization. The Western civilization. We're the goose that lays the golden eggs. ## Sharansky: Don't TASE offerings fall to cut business grants 28% of capital raised cut business grants DAVID HARRIS

INDUSTRY and Trade Minister Natan Sharansky urged the government yesterday not to be hasty in cutting its support for capital investment the ru The Finance Ministry is reportfrom edly considering slashing its new-Gem business grant from 34 percent to umpl 15% of the gross investment. Be Treasury officials would not discuss figures, but did confirm foul that Prime Minister Binyamin Matt Netanyahu and Finance Minister equ: Dan Meridor intend to prune the heac aid as part of the government's attempt to implement NIS 4.9 billion in budget cuts.

"It is forbidden to implement hasty changes to the capital-invest-ment aid law," said Sharansky dur-ing his first official meeting with Dan Propper, President of the Manufacturers Association.

Investors received grants worth 38% of their gross investment unuil last year, when the Peres government agreed that a reduction be made over two years, despite strong opposition from then industry and trade minister Micha Harish. From January 1996 the aid was reduced to 34%, with a govemment commitment to reduce it by a further 4% at the start of 1997.

SHARE offerings on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange have dwindled to 28 percent of capital raised by Israeli companies in local and foreign financial markets during the first five months of the year, the Bank of Israel reported yesterday. Of $795 million raised worldwide by local firms, only $222m. was through the TASE, thus indicating a continuation of a decline which began io 1994.

Jerusalem Post Staff

After registering a record $3.3 billion worth of newly floated shares during 1993, TASE offerings slumped to $1.8b. in 1994, and to $661 m. last year.

Meanwhile, Israeli floatations abroad - almost always on Wall Street - kept a steady level of roughly $450m. annually, with the exception of 1994 which saw a slump to $90m.

During the first five months of this year, capital raising by Israeli companies through foreign finan-cial markets bas reached $573m., and a large number of companies are known to be preparing offerings abroad.

The Bank of Israel said the decline to TASE offerings is attributable to the ongoing depression in the financial market.

ISRAEL'S first commercial attache to Jordan departs for Amman this afternoon.

Shaul Sasson, 31, of Polish-Hungarian and Iraqi stock, said the main goal during his minimum two-year posting will be to strengthen ties, "so grc relations can be normalized."

Bilateral trade potential between Jordan and Israel is estimated at $100 million a year. "We'll wait to see the figures, then talk," cautioned Sasson, a physics graduate from Tel Aviv University.

Budding commercial links betweeo Jerusalem and Amman already encompass exchanges of goods. services and knowledge, but Sasson predicts major growth in industrial cooperation, particularly the passing of know-how on to Jordan.

Industry and Trade Ministry officials believe economic relations with Jordan will eventually enhance Israeli ties further afield in the Arab world, and boost Jordanian business interests in Europe and America.

Stocks slump on

Two-Sided index

THE TASE indexes closed little changed yesterday, amid concern about the government's ability to implement a NIS 4.9 hillion reduction in the 1997 budget. Stocks also fell as the shekel strengthened against the US dollar, trading at 3.1930, compared with 3.2010 yesterday. A strong shekel harts exparting campanies, which earn revenue in dollars and pay expenses in shekels. The Maof Index fell 0.14 percent to 210.27 and the Two-Sided Index fell 0.09% to 198.29. Of 988 shares trading across the exchange, more than twice as many shares rose as fell.

Some NIS 68.5 millinn worth nf shares changed hands, NIS 7.1m. ahnve the average trading level.

"It was disappninting that nothing was cut from the budget in 1996 and there is some skepticism" regardiog the gaverament's ability to carry out the reductions planned for 1997, said Daniella Finn, head nf sales at Tel Aviv firm Batucha Securities & Investments Ltd. Even so, she said the approval for the cut shows "the government means business," Prime Minister Binyamin Ne-

tanyahu is "trying th look good far the business sector, the ones who had shivered at the thought of his being elected," said Finn. "He wants to show them that he's the ooe they want to vote for next time."

Maof Index-listed fuel company Delek was the most active share on the exchange, closing unchanged as NIS 12.8m. worth of shares changed hands.

The shares traded because Delek will move from the Maof Index to the Two-Sided Index, to be replaced he Israel Discnunt Bank. Funds which invest in the Maof Index needed to sell Delek, Finn said. "Delek is a good stock and there's nn reason for it to fall," Finn said.

The main influence on the exchange remains "the very high interest rates," said Finn. "It'a paralyzing the market."

The Bank of Israel raised the rate at which it lends to banks 1.5. percentage pnints tn 17% nn June 27. The interest rate increase made savings accounts and other fixed investments more attractive relative in stocks.

Declining Manf Index-listed companies included investment compaoy IDB Holdings, which fell 1%. Investors sold shares' amid speculation entreprenent Stef Wertheimer was mahle to increase his stake in the company, Finn said.

Wertheimer, chairman of Iscar. Ltd., bought a 15% stake in IDB Haldings last month. Also on the Maof Index, Teva Pharmaceotical Industries Ltd. fell 1.25% following declines in Teva's American Depositary Receipts traded in New York.

Koor Industries Ltd. fell 0.25%, Bezeg fell 0.5%.

Gaining shares on the Maof Index included food manufacturer. Osem Investments Ltd., which: rose 2%; the Israel Corp., an in-:vestment company, which rose 1% and Clal (Israel) Ltd., which rose 0.25%.

Briton Tim Henman, as well as the encounter between Germany's Alex Radulescu and Malivai Washington of the US. both unseeded, were put off until today.

Sampras stayed with Krajicek during the first set despite being pummeled by the big Dutchman's serve which had included 23 aces by the time the match was suspended.

But at 5-5, Krajicek held serve to love then broke Sampras to love with a series of brilliant passes.

Ivanisevic, a finalist in 1992 and 1994 and a beaten semifinalist on two other occasions, was expected to have no problems with Stoltenberg, bidding to become the first Australian semifinalist at Wimbledon since Pat Cash's triumphant year in 1987.

lvanisevic's normally deadly serve was off target early on and there were early signs of trouble at the first rain break when he trailed 5-3.

Things did not improve upon the resumption, and Stoltenberg rook a two-set lead 7-3 in a tiebreak on his third set point when Ivanisevic hit a service return wide.

The Centre Court crowd had earlier been treated to an impromptu concert by pop singer Cliff Richard, who sang a series of his old hits to keep them entertained during the longest rain stoppage.

LAC DE MADINE. France (Reuter) – Frenchman Cyril Saugrain burst into the limelight by winning the fourth stage of the Tour de France as compatriot Stephane Heulot took the race leader's yellow jersey on a great day for France yesterday.

Saugrain, who was in a group of five riders who rode in front for some 200 kilometers of the day's 232-km stage from Soissons, launched the sprint 200 meters from the line to beat Dutchman Danny Nelissen and Swiss rider Rolf Jaermann into second and third places.

Saugrain, Nelissen, Jaermann, Heulot and Italian Mariano Piccoli broke away from a group of 15 riders who had tried their luck just after the first intermediate sprint, 30 kms into the stage through the Champagne vineyards and the battlefields of World War One.

Heulot and his four companions built a lead which at one point ran to 17 minutes and managed to resist when a lazy pack woke up to try to reel them in. The leading group crossed the finish line over four minutes ahead of the main bunch.

The mass sprint for sixth place was marred by a crash involving four riders, including Czech Jan Svorada who was wearing the points classification leader's green jersey.

Svorada, who walked to the line, and the other men who fell -Dane Bjarne Riis, Frenchman Laurent Brochard and Italian Mauro Bettin - appeared unhurt. Overnight leader Frederic Moncassin of France came in with the pack to lose his yellow jersey to Heulot, who had taken fourth place in the stage.

Saugrain, who had never won anything since turning profession-al last year, delighted bis small

"We wanted to thank the orgachampion a week before the Tour started, joined the Gan stable this season after helping defending champion Miguel Indurain for three years in the Banesio team. "Of course I would have liked to win the stage but the most important thing was the jersey." Heulot said. "I'm glad for Saugrain and for Aubervilliers. It's good to see them win."

Hungarian reparations plan hailed as model for E. Europe

BUDAPEST (Reuter) - Hungary said yesterday it had agreed to help its 20,000 Holocaust survivors and return confiscated Jewish property in a plan Jewish groups hailed as a model for eastem Europe.

"This agreement is a landmark," Israel Singer, secretary-general of the US-based World Jewish Congress (WJC), told Reuters. 'It is literally the first serious east European attempt by a government which made promises for a long time and which were finally fulfilled."

He said Jewish groups could have held out for a better deal hut this would have been pointless given the mean age of Holocaust survivors is now 74. This is a model for eastern European restitution...It is the last chapter of World War II being written," Singer said.

Some 600,000 of Hungary's 800,000 Jews perished in Nazi labor or concentration camps. There are 100,000 Jews in Hungary today, including 20,000 Holocaust survivors.

Hungary was obliged under the Treaty of Paris in 1947 to make restitution of Jewisb property, but the Communist government which took power the next year in ored the agreement and nationalized many of the properties. Fresh efforts to secure restitution began after the collapse of communism in 1989.

The Finance Ministry in a statement said representatives of Hungarian and international Jewish groups and the government had agreed on Tuesday night to establish a foundation to administer confiscated Jewish properties and art treasures for the benefit of Hungarian Jews who survived the Holocaust.

The government will contribute four billion forints ($27 million) in compensation coupons, which are vouchers issued in lieu of confiscated property, to the foundanon and would also provide cash to support its operations, the statement said.

"This will secure an additional income for the survivors of the Holocaust and the use of the property will be exclusively within Hungary," the statement said. It said parliament would approve the necessary legislation later this year

Singer said the foundation would have a 19-member board and its chairman would be Ronald Lauder, son of cosmetics tycoon Estee Lauder and a leading light of the US Jewish community.

Singer said the $50 a month extra that survivors will receive would help them appreciably.

He said Jewish groups from abroad planned to contribute to the foundation. He also said only former communal properties such as schools and synagogues would be turned over to the fund. Suits to recover confiscated private property were not affected.

"They [Prime Minister Gyula Horn's government] understand that this makes them a Western country," Singer said. "They have taken a question that has bothered this entire region and removed it as best as anyone can to fix that terrible period.

NEWS IN BRIEF

50% rise in use of Arava Crossing

A total of 140,000 people - Israelis, Jordanians and foreign tourists - havecrossed the Israel-Jordan border at the Arava Crossing, near Eilat, during the first six months of 1966, the Transport Ministry said yesterday.

This is 50 percent increase compared with the first half of 1995. The ministry also noted that more than 300 vehicles have crossed the border. In addition, over 60 trucks have carried freight between the two countries. Among the most common products are sheep, dairy products, and textiles, the ministry said. Haim Shapiro

THE Amos I communications satellite became a commercial venture yesterday, as Israel Aircraft Industries (IAI) executives moved to wrap up a deal with a major international cable broadcaster. The Amos has been operational since Monday, and has met all the criteria set by the Communications Ministry for commercial broadcasting. The satellite was launched on an Ariane rocket booster from French Guiana on May 16, and can service the Middle East and Central Europe.

Now LAI executives say the focus is on securing clients. The government bas guaranteed to lease three of its seven transponders, and a new customer is Hungary's Antenne company, which broadcasts a video signal in that central European country.

"Over the past week, we did tests in Hungary," said Amitsur Rosenfeld, director of the project. "The transmission quality was excellent."

Amos's marketing is being done by SpaceCom, which now wants to sign a deal with the US cable broadcaster HBO for transmission to the Middle East. The leading competitor for the contract is a European firm, Copernicus, and IAI executives expect HBO to reach a decision within the next two weeks.

Currently, the main subcontractors of Amos are Daimler-Benz Aerospace from Germany and Alcatel Espace from France, Rosenfeld said Amos is now gamering serious interest by European and Asian broadcasters. "Until the satellite was launched and the orbit was set," Rosenfeld said, "potential clients wouldn't commit themselves. Now we're flooded hy faxes."

The life of the one-ton satellite had been esnmated at 10 years. But LAI executives said careful preparation at the launch saved a sigmificant amount of fuel and the Amos - in geostationary orbit at an altitude of 36,000 km may be able to operate for an extra 12 months. Amos's seven transponders will be used mostly for television broadcasting, but it will also provide services for cable TV, Internet. and cellular phones. The $200 million spacecraft will provide a link between hospitals and mobile medical units, and between earthquake detection stations and seismology centers.

Swimming banned at several beaches The Health Ministry bas barred bathing at the Shikma, Ashalim, and Tmarimbeaches on the Gaza coast and the Poleg beach in Netanya until further notice, due to pollution. The ministry said that the quality of most of the other beaches in the country is "very good." Regional councils in the Tiberias, Migdal, Eilat, Gan Raveb. and Hof Hacarmel areas failed to conduct water tests at some 20 beaches, contrary to instructions by the ministry. Judy Siegel Stiffer penalties for parking in spots for disabled From today, drivers who park in spaces reserved for the disabled are to receive not only a considerable fine, NIS 330, but also a message reading: "Don't park in my space - you wouldn't want to be in my place. This is the fruit of a campaign by the Roof Organization of Disabled Organizations and Unaffiliated Disabled in conperation with the police, the Local Authorities Union, and Haim Shapiro Joint-Israel.

Forest fire danger

The Nature Reserves Authority yesterday called on hikers, farmers and IDF forces to be careful when handling fire, due to the current beat wave.

Fires have destroyed thousands of dunams of forest in nature reserves over the past few months, mostly in the north. Most of the fires were caused by negligence by hikers, and the IDF's failure to follow rules regarding live-fire exercises during hot weather. Jerusolem Post Staff

Rabies in Petah Tikva area

considerable concessions to allow the creation of Sharon's portfolio

This meeting was followed by the creation of a committee within the NRP to come up with a solution. Included on it were Levy, and MKs Hanan Porat and Zvi Handel. One notion they came up with was that Levy yield much of his Energy portfolio in return for the NRP getting the first turn at the Religions Affairs Ministry, which it is supposed to share with Shas in a rotation agreement. This was immediately shot down by Shas.

The impression last night was that after Levy's ultimatum, the coalition partners will be far more amenable to concessions. Agriculture Minister Rafael Eitan noted that be bad already agreed to cede to the long-term waler resources planning division, and Shas's Interior Ministry is willing to yield departments.

United Torah Judaism, however, continued to speak in two. voices. Deputy Housing Minister Meir Porush, of its Agudat Yisrael faction, refused to consider giving np the Public Works Department and the Rural Housing Division. But UTJ'a Degel Hatorah faction continued to campaign for switching the Housing portfolio for Religious Affairs, and giving Housing to Sharon. This was favored by the NRP, but rejected outright by Shas.

Regardless of the remaining difficulties, an upbeat Levy predicted at a gathering of bis Gesher Party's activists at Kfar Hamaccabiah that "by the Friday cabinet meeting, this whole affair will be behind us. The solution is only hours away."

Levy was one of those invited to participate in the late night meeting called by Netanyahu. So were the two NRP ministers, Sbas's Arych Deri, Eitan, Poruah, Justice Minister Ya'acov Ne'eman, and Prime Minister's Office Director-General Avigdor Lieberman.

Likud sources said Levy has put Netanyahu m a no-win situation. Bow to his pressure or go to Washington with a crisis left behind. No matter what happens, they said, the Levy-Sharon axis could continue to make Netanyahu's political life difficult.
